The final year of the M.Arch program is centred on an individual design proposition by each student. Following Design Research Studio 1, Design Research Studio 2 focuses on complex individual design projects. Since the design Thesis is the culmination of a professional program in architecture, design projects should include a proposition about a building, or a series of buildings within a community setting. During this process, written research and design research are encouraged to reinforce each other rather than to be viewed in a linear sequence.
